Customer Assistance for Biofuels Construction and Operation

The Customer Assistance Program at DEQ is here to provide assistance with any environmental questions you may have. We routinely help companies during the permit issuance process, and we can help you determine if your company or operation will need environmental permits. In the production of biodiesel and ethanol, certain environmental permits may be required for the construction and operation of such facilities. If you have any questions, please contact Customer Services at 1-800-869-1400.
